the Mel Gray game

GOIN' TO THE CHAPPELL

Lethal Weapon 4 - 47 Sea Stags - 10

First of all, please let me apologize for the headline. It's all I could come up with. The only team-related pun I could engender was "Peyton's Place" and that's wicked over.

So anyway, LW4 makes a hash of the GotW by romping all over a suddenly toothless Sea Stags attack that sorely misses Priest Holmes and Randy Moss.

The aforementioned Mr. Manning led the charge, continuing his nonpareil 2004 play by throwing five TDP's for the third time this season. This time, two of them were for +50 yards. Domanick Davis and Kevan Barlow each contributed two TDR's and the rout was on.

Sea Stags got very little—seven points from Drunken K Mike Vanderjagt being the primary cause for celebration in Karlville and fall out of the SCRBLTH lead. It doesn't get any easier for SS in Week 11, either, as they face the retooled offensive juggernaut that is TWC with second place in the division on the line.

LW4, now 5-5 after three wins in a row, will try to keep pace, crossing divisions to play Munchen Mavericks.

[Insert creative pun here]

The play of LW4 Peyton Manning defied description, as it has all year.

Chunky Soup 30 - Hook-Ups 17

With San Diego on bye, the Chunky Soup Mel Gray machine grinds to a halt, but the scoring rolls on behind a strong New Orleans performance by Aaron "Michael Vick's Cousin" Brooks and John Carney, each of whom scored nine points. Hook-Ups' leading scorer this week was their TE, so you know their game sucked. ☺ Coupled with the loss by Sea Stags, Chunky Soup take over the lead in SCRBLTH at 6-3-1. Hook-Ups fall to 3-7 and wind up in the cellar.

Egomaniacs 32 - MacBain's 69th Highlanders 17

Speaking of TE's, EGO still don't have one, haven't all year, but the play of Daunte Culpepper and Terrell Owens continue to render it moot. They both score 12 points this week to lead the EGO charge. MacBain are the recipients of a vintage Emmitt Smith performance, 12 points, but very little else, and life for them goes on as it always has. They fall to 3-7 and are only a half game ahead of RAGE at the bottom of MEMORIR. At 6-4, EGO find themselves only a game out of first.

Munchen Mavericks 32 - Outlaws 17

In the second game this week to finish 32-17, Munchen Mavericks ride 18 points from their RB's to the victory. Jerome Bettis scores 12 and Deuce McAllister six. Outlaws have three all over their score sheet, as the addition of Fraud Taylor fails to bear fruit. Outlaws remain in second place behind MOW at 7-3. At 5-3-2, MM are right on their heels. Looks like a couple of good close divisional races shaping up this year.

Rage 26 - Men O'War 16

Rage won! Whoa! Sadly, if MOW hadn't made the big trade with TWC this week, Rage would not have won, as Curtis Martin's 12 points were sorely missed. Ahman Green was scoreless in his MOW debut, as they pull out their new "Jahman" backfield. Fun! Rage, as usual, was punchless except for Adam Vinatieri, who didn't throw a TDP this week, but did outscore MOW all by himself, with 17 points. Overall, RAGE's 2-7-1 is still the worst record in the league, but this was a good week for them. MOW cling to the lead in MEMORIR at 7-3.

Renegade Rebels 28 - Bake-O's 18

The Rebs get off the mat after a couple of stinky performances and... and... ok, they really don't. They just have a really hot QB in Donovan McNabb, who scored 18 points on MNF to single-handedly win the game for Carrier. Shim's reaction: "I can't believe I left Brett Favre unprotected in the expansion draft in 1993." Bye-week scrub K Josh Brown scored 12 points for BO, who fall to 4-6, just ahead of HU in the nether regions of SCRBLTH. RR are also 4-6, right there with them.

The Windmilling Chaos 40 - Iron Men 12

On the one hand, TWC would have won even without the trade. On the other, if they'd started Brandon Stokley, they'd have scored 49 points, had all seven starters score and won the Mel. Still, a fantastic week for TWC. Six starters scored (only Chad Johnson abstaining), led by new RB Curtis Martin's 12 points. TWC is now 5-5 after a 1-4 start and right in the SCRBLTH mix. IM fall to 5-5 behind six points from backup K Jeff Reed and little else. Favre had 15 on the IM bench, but it would have availed them naught had he started.
